The colored proprietor of a Levee Court street eating house on Bayou Lafourche, it is said, was making soups, soups them and the next time, he cooks them and the next time, they are seen they have undergone culinary metamorphosis and are retailed at five cents each as rabbit and fish sandwiches.

The other day, according to the story of one of the loungers, the thoughtless man purchased twenty rabbits on market street, and threw them in, for they had not been removed from the deceased. They were all taken to the restaurant and placed in a back room, where often the rattle of the red, white and blue-poker chips—was to disturb the monotony of the tranquil establishment.

That night a festive crowd of nearly a dozen surrounded the table, and whilst the game was yet young a rap was heard out front.

"Niggar, grab yo' a rabbit!" exclaimed the proprietor in a hoarse whisper.

They tumbled at once, and when the obsequious proprietor opened the door to two policemen, every larkey in the house was sedulously stripping a rabbit of his skin.

"Walk rat, gentlemen," invited the servile proprietor, "we's all habin a little rabbit skinnin' back here."

The poker chips were as invisible as the ghost of Aladdin, and after filling their lungs with the stifling odor of cheap tobacco, frying fat and mean whisky from numerous bottles, the two minions of municipal order departed, satisfied that everything was all right.

The police men must hab thought that a man haint got no right to gib a rabbit skinnin' in he own house," grinn'd mean host in mock indignation, as he closed the door and turned the key.

Some of the Court street houses of ill repute are becoming very notorious on account of the frequent robberies that occur within their confines. Last week one man was robbed of over $300, and quite likely a great many are every victim, but on account of the unpleasant conspicuity into which they would inevitably come were they to make complaint to the police or have any of the inmates arrested, they deem it more prudent to grin and bear their loss.

A night or two since the officers on the Court street were arrested on the railroad man of family who complained of having been robbed of his watch and a $5 bill. He said he knew the name the girl gave, and the officer accompanied him into the house, where the girl by that name was called for. It developed, however, that the siren had given the officers lead the whodogalsky brought down stairs and put in a row. The clown slyly poked out the one who was supposed to have gotten the watch and money but when told that he would have to swear out a warrant he said it would never do, and that rather than become involved in such a controversy he would let his watch and money go. And he did.

The Evening "Journal" had a reporter at the Mayfield lynching. As result here are two statements in to a very accurate account, both of which were made within a few lines of each other. "The jailer wisely made little resistance, but finally gave up the keys. With a yell the mob rushed to Stone's cell and nearly drove him to flight, but he escaped by the jail and carried with him a tin box that was available place."

The reporter smoked another cigarette, no doubt, and continued: "The mob entered and overpowered the jailer and guard, and took the negro to the cell house. The negro walked to the cell house. He was arrested, but did not utter a sound."

"Say, Jim," asked a youngster at the close of last night, after he had overheard the ebullient-looking gentleman in front of him remark to his air partner that the "piece was satisfactorily executed," "what does executed mean?"

"Pan," turned over, shook off from his eyes the amorphous influences that beset them and replied, "that time when that the piece was cutthered, I guess."

"Say," said our friend John S. Miller, the snuff drummer, "do you know that I put in a few years as a drummer? Yes, I have, an old union card somewhere now. My last work as a print was in Louisville, years ago. I worked four years in a good country office and then served two more years under the structure in the same office that was in St. Louis at that time. After I became a four, I took most of the country on this continent. New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Canada, Old Mexico and Salt Lake. I wanted to become a Mormon at Salt Lake, but the gold fever broke me up. I lived about that time and I walked up there to see the sights. Then I walked back to Denver; then I came to Kansas City in a nice, clean cattle car. Did you ever ride in a cattle car?"

"No."

"Plenty of fresh air and beautiful scenery. Say, myself and another partner engaged a car with big letters on the side, the Derringer, N. M. one might for El Paso, Texas, and were enjoying a little nap en route; we were both short on sleep, to say nothing of food. After the unlimited had gotten full speed she rounded a sharp curve some where out there in New Mexico, and then we found out there was something in the car besides the furniture. What do you suppose it was? It was a barrel of cement, and you know a barrel of stuf weighs some hundred pounds. The swing of the barrel had upset the barrel and the fun began. Every time the train would alack or jerk forward that barrel would go from one side of the car to the other at a minute's clip. That was dark as pitch in the car and we didn't know just exactly what it was. It might be dynamite. Heavens, 'Look out, jump, here she comes.'" But through the darkness of the car from one of us every few minutes. "We kept that barrel race up until dark, and then we captured the thing and one of us stood guard outside the barrel, while the other slept. Don't tell me! If you want to have a real good time get in a box car with a barrel of cement for a trailer. See these grey hairs?"

"Well, sonning, I need a few cases to make up a car load," and our genial friend started out to bustle.

"I'm going to have company for dinner today," John S. earnestly remarked a well known lady to her band as he started down town the other day.

"Yes, my dear," abruptly declared Mr. Mcimpuduous, as he felt theaching void where he carried his knife, but unless something turned up in haste, you want have dinner for company."

NOTES.

The river is falling at a lively gait.

The gauge showed this forenoon 15.7 and falling.

The City of Clarksville the little palatial packet departed for Elizabethton today at noon carrying an excellent load of both freight and people.

Business somewhat quieter on the levee this morning than yesterday forenoon.

The towboat John D. Lewis leaves this afternoon for Tennessee river after a tow of iron.

The City of Paducah for St. Louis passed out of the Tennessee river last night with a nice load.

The steamer W. F. Niblett from Cincinnati for Memphis passed down this forenoon with a fair trip.

The Ashland City is due out of Tennessee tonight, and leaves on her return to Danville tomorrow morning at 10.

The Dick Fowler and John S. Hopkins were away to their different destinations as usual on time this morning carrying good cargoes.

All the tow boats, as well as the harbor job boats, are out bustling around and doing considerable business. There is not an idle job boat now in the harbor.

The tug City of Metropolis, after being under the attention of the skilled workmen at the marine ways for a few hours, was let in the river last night all O. K.

The Charley McDonald is due out of the Mississippi river about the close of the week en route to Cincinnati with a tow of lumber. She will take in tow her Capt. Kline's excursion packet which was on the wars here last week for repairs.

Capt. Alex. Montgomery has secured the contract for the Cincinnati Coverage Company to tow stave timber out of the Tennessee river to Cincinnati. The steamer Henry De Bus has been refitted after being in retirement for two years and will assist the Al Martin to do the work. Both boats are on their way down for Tennessee river to bring up a tow.

The tug steamer, City of Chattanooga, Messrs. Beatty and Clements recent purchase, is due here today from St. Louis. This steamer and barges will be on short notice put in the packet trade between St. Louis and Tennessee river points. Capt. Beatty will also have his other steamer, the John D. Lewis converted into a packet steamer and will ply in the same trade.

River business, both towboat and packet traffic, is improving considerably in all sections of the river. The towboats around this harbor have all the work they can do, and the packet steamers, which arrive and depart from the wharf at this port daily, have for the past few weeks been bringing and carrying away laden cargoes of both freight and people. In the Tennessee river, especially, the packet business has picked up wonderfully in the last few months. The steamer Will J. Cummins, which leaves this harbor every Saturday, is always loaded to the guards with freight; and the tri-weekly packet Ashland City leaves every other morning for Danville with fine cargoes each way, and the St. Louis and Tennessee river packets never ascend or descend the waters of the "old Suwannee" except with big cargoes of both freight and people. Then there is to be in a short time another St. Louis and Tennessee river line of boats, which will make more or less business in that stragg.

There is nothing so good for the coughs and colds of the children and babies as Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. It cures every whooping cough, cold in the head and gives sweet, refreshing sleep. It is pleasantly sweet to the taste. Any child will take it and ask for more. Good druggists sell it. For sale by Ochsenschlaeger & Walker.

Nice Bath Rooms in Connection.

Will find from an important thing to be considered, says a woman writer.

Although I will not go as far as to say that a woman's heart has ever been broken by a badly brushed hat, I have known a woman to look at a bulging shirt blouse and decide that even if she could ever consent to pillow her head upon such an uncomfortable-looking spot the loud vivacity of the waistcoat beneath would make rest there quite impossible. I am not going to tell you that to wear that is the work of mightier intellects than mine. And there are the young lady maid impersonators of the variety stage to copy. These represent the woman's ideal of man's clothing. I may, however, prove myself useful in telling you what not to wear. To begin with, there is one rule which should have been written on your mind.

Do not dress like a genius, even if you are one.

The average woman has a strong aversion to go out with a gentleman who, because her dress has gone out of fashion—substituted for them long hair, short trousers, delectable shirts and a generally carefully arranged dishevelment.

The average woman is a silly little thing, you know, and she would rather that you looked commonplace and well groomed than that every newsworthy should be able to tell that she is walking with an intellectual giant.

As for the woman above the average—well, she knows that you're not a genius, anyhow. You can't fool her with fresh neckties and doorknob studs!

Remember that I am directing your things to meet the tastes of the majority of women. There are ladies who are riding on tandem bicycles with gentlemen who wear red suits, and some women love the society of a necktie or vest that almost bark.

The ring watch-chain and belt-chain habit is popular with young ladies who stand on the other side of the footlights and have a taste for anything that glitters even if it isn't is earnest.

By this class of lady you may be loved for your scornful, but a large percentage of the weaker sex prefer to do all the glittering that is to be done themselves. N. Y. World.

Great Concert Receipts.

While one making a professional tour, round the world, Mrs. Trubett agreed to sing at a concert at the Society Islands for a third of the evening's receipts. She was rather surprised, though not displeased, with her share (when counted over) of $200.00, 40 turkeys, 95 chickens, 3,000 oysters and an immense quantity of bananas, oranges and lemons.—Chicagoan.

A Convicting Oath.

A young man employed in a downtown wholesale house has a most unusual way of affirming a fact that is brought into question. If anyone is brought the slightest doubt as to the truth of any statement he immediately brings conviction by swearing.

"Hope to lose my right hand if it isn't true."

"The other day a friend asked him to a saloon to have a drink."

"Thanks, old man," he replied. "I've stopped drinking. I'll take a cigar, though."

"For how long?"

"Don't try to tell me that."

"Well, I have. Hope to lose my right hand if I ever take another drink."

Hang! The swinging doors of the saloon came together at that moment and nearly amputated four of his fingers. Five minutes later he was holding a wooden leg in a leather bag.

Watch cleaned and new main spring replaced at $1.00 each for limited time.
